DETAILED ACTION

Claims 39 and 44-47 are presented for examination.

Status of the Case

The Amendments and Remarks, filed October 1, 2007, have been received and entered into the application.

Applicant's arguments, filed October 1, 2007, have been fully considered but they are not deemed to be persuasive. Rejections not reiterated from previous Office Actions are hereby withdrawn. The following rejections are either reiterated or newly applied. They constitute the complete set of rejections presently being applied to the instant application.

Maintained Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The rejection of claims 39 and 44-47 under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) over Harper WO 00/44375 in view of Hamilton (U.S. Patent No. 6,335,361 B1) has been maintained for the reasons stated in the prior Office Action June 29, 2007 and further in view of the following remarks.

Response to Arguments

Applicant argues that Harper discloses using vitamin E and vitamin C for treating oxidative stress in a cat/dog and to treat a disorder associated with oxidative stress. Applicant further argues that though they are both antioxidants, they each have more than one mechanism of action and Harper does not teach their use for affecting learning ability in aged pets.

Harper discloses using vitamin E and vitamin C to overcome the problem of oxidative stress in a cat and dog and to prevent or treat a disorder affected by oxidative stress. Disorders such as ageing and neurodegenerative disease are caused by oxidative stress (see page 13, lines 6-14) and are treatable using the disclosed composition of Harper. As Applicant has mentioned, vitamin C and vitamin E are antioxidants that have several mechanisms of action. Applicant argues that the present invention differs from Harper because Harper does not teach that vitamin C and vitamin E affect learning in aged pets. However, one of the actions of vitamin C and E is to prevent or treat ageing in pets as taught by Harper due to its antioxidative action. Applicant has not provided any reasoning or evidence as to why the combined antioxidative effect for the treatment of aging in the aged pets would not have necessarily resulted from the combination of Harper and Hamilton. Administration of the same products, for example, vitamin E, vitamin C, lipoic acid and carnitine, to an identical host (i.e. an aged pet) would have the same effect on learning as that claimed because products of identical compounds cannot have mutually exclusive properties.

Applicant in his remarks argues that the prior art references combined do not teach the claimed invention. Applicant is reminded that the obviousness rejection is not an anticipation rejection. Harper and Hamilton clearly teach the performance of the practice for aged companion pets to receive the same material. In obviousness rejection a combination of references is used, and the references are relied upon in combination and are not meant to be considered separately as in a vacuum. It is the combination of all of the cited and relied upon references that make up the state of the art with regard to the claimed invention. Applicant's claimed invention fails to patentably distinguish over the state of the art represented by the combination of the cited references. In re Young, 403 F.2d 754, 159 USPQ 725 (CCPA 1968); In re Keller 642 F.2d 413, 208 USPQ 871 (CCPA 1981).

Moreover, it is noted that rejections under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are based on combinations of references, where the secondary references are cited to reconcile the deficiencies of the primary reference with the knowledge generally available to one ordinary skill in the art to show that the differences between Applicant's invention and the prior art are such that they would have been modifications that were prima facie obvious to the skilled artisan. It is noted that the claimed invention is not required to be expressly suggested in its entirety by any one or all of the references cited under 35 U.S.C. 103(a). Rather, the test is what the combined teachings of the references would have suggested to those of ordinary skill in the art. See In re Keller, 642 F.2d 413, 208 USPQ 871 (CCPA 1981).

For these reasons, and those already made of record at pages 2-5 of the previous Office Action dated June 29, 2007, of which such reasons are incorporated herein by reference, rejection of claims 39 and 44-47 remain proper and is maintained.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136 (a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
